MEET HEAD MEN'S BASKETBALL COACH

Stan Holt

Stan Holt and the nationally ranked Lions finished the 2015-2016 season 25-7. The Red River Athletic Conference Tournament Champions had four RRAC All-Conference Players, one NAIA All-American, and were ranked as high as #11 in the nation, the highest national ranking in school history.

With more than 10 years of progressive coaching experience, Holt brings a leadership style that focuses on the entire student-athlete. His emphasis on academics, athletics and character have contributed to the overall success of his former players. Holt and his Lions are the RRAC Tournament Champions and finished this season ranked #17 in the nation with an overall record of 25-7. Holt cites character development as a crucial component to building a successful program. He believes that an emphasis on core values, providing guidance to promote good decision-making, developing a winning attitude and culture, and expecting a laser-like focus on academic achievements is the plan in place to lead Langston Basketball to its full potential. A determined educator, Holt has dedicated his career to offering the highest quality leadership and coaching methods with the goal to provide student athletes the best opportunity to attain educational success, character growth, and elite basketball skill development.

Holt's experience includes the high major NCAA Division I level. While on staff at USC, Holt contributed to the development of players such as Toronto Raptor's All-Star guard DeMar DeRozan, forward Nikola Vucevic of the Orlando Magic, and Chicago Bulls forward Taj Gibson. Additionally, he helped develop Daniel Hackett, who currently plays for Emporio Armani Milano of the Italian League and former PAC-10 defensive player of the year Marcus Simmons (now playing professionally in Japan). He has worked over 20 national elite basketball camps nationwide including the Kobe Bryant Academy, USC Elite Camp and the Nike Phenom 150 camp.
